

Driving-Tests.org is Hitting the Road for Driver Safety and Heading to 2015 ALA Midwinter Meeting

From January 30 to February 2, 2015, the Driving-Tests.org team will be attending the ALA Midwinter Meeting in Chicago at Booth 2233. This will be an opportunity for representatives from Driving-Tests.org to demonstrate live versions of the site's pro bono program for libraries. Libraries will be able to sign up for their own free driver education program right at the booth.

Driving-Tests.org is a company dedicated to road safety and driver education. It works with schools and libraries to reach new drivers with the materials they need to study properly for their DMV exams, including constantly updated online versions of the DMV manuals as well as permit practice tests. The site also partners with various other driver safety non-profits, such as the American Driver and Traffic Safety Education Association, Governor's Highway Safety Association, National Safety Council, and many more.

Driving-Tests.org's latest successful outreach effort has been providing free driver education programs to more libraries and schools. With the number of participating library partners nearing 500, the company's goal is to ensure continued growth in the number of libraries joining while ushering in full site-wide accessibility through a new partnership with BrowseAloud announced in fall 2014. This new service includes tools that will allow users to hear selections read aloud, make them into MP3s, translate pages into other languages, magnify text, and mask sections of the screen for greater visibility on driving practice tests.

Displaying at ALA Chicago is a wonderful opportunity for everyone at Driving-Tests.org to meet and interact with the librarians that we partner with every day through our pro bono program's free practice permit sites for their communities.

We can't wait to see you at Driving-Tests.org's booth #2233, and provide you with a site that will help your patrons become safer drivers starting today!
